Reviews

This publication is fantastic. We have read through and i am certain that i will planning to read yet again yet again down the road. You wont feel monotony at at any time of your respective time (that's what catalogs are for concerning when you request me).

Excerpt: . architecture that prevailed about Elizabeth s reign. It was originally designed only as a hunting-box for occasional residence, nor has it experienced much external alteration. It is built in the form of a Roman E, and is nearly surrounded with walls, as was generally the case with the family mansions of that period, which were connected with a town or village. It being seldom visited as a show-house, I do not conceive that a long description will be necessary. In the deer park, which faces the front of the house, is a high round hill, called Bradley Little Knoll, which is decorated with a hanging wood. The road which passes from Frome to Stourhead, c. divides this knoll from a high range of hills, called Bradley Long Knolls, and is the western termination of the Wiltshire Downs, which advance majestically to the extremity of the county, and constitute a very conspicuous land-mark, overlooking most part of Somersetshire. sect. xv. Longleat, Is the seat of the Marquis of Bath. Mr. Thomas Davis, who is steward to this nobleman, has favoured me with a particular, and I believe correct, description of it; some part of which has been before published. When we find genius and talents, actively exerted for the public good, we feel it a duty to applaud the individual. Mr. Davis has meritoriously employed his time in acquiring a knowledge of the ancient history of Longleat; and having been for forty years past engaged...
