Excerpt: . . . he detained him as such, yet when he came into his presence he did him all the honour and obeisance that became a son to doe to a father. But falling into discourse with him upon the late businesse that had been betwixt them, tho old man onelyrcplyed: Son, fortune hath given you the victorie, and there is no place for discoursing those things with the Conquoronr; and so would undertako no discourse further upon the subject. The Burgomaster upon this occasion told me what I much wondered at, that tho East India Companio of Holland had very litle advantage by the India trade, they haveing not above four in the hundereth, which he hail reason to know, because he himselfe had a stock in it. He also told me that two or three davs before the time of mv discourse with him. there had been a friendship made betwixt the King of England and the Prince 1083. of Orange. On the 22 I went before four oclock in the morning in the post waggon, which is very commodious, and haveing only two wheels goes with an easinesse beyond what could well be thought before tryall. In those waggons we goe to Maestricht from the Bosch in one day, which is near 70 English myles. We change horses six times by the way, which is most part heathie, but not without in some places pleasant groves of trees and corn fields; we dine at a...
